MESSRS. SEABURY & JOHNSON:

Gentlemen—At your request I have obtained in open market samples of BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTERS and Alcock's Porous Plasters, and have submitted them to chemical analysis to determine their comparative merits as external remedies.

I find in BENSON'S CAPCINE PLASTERS valuable medical ingredients, which do not exist in Alcock's Porous Plasters: hence in my opinion they are superior to those of Alcock's.

Yours respy.

An Antidote for Animal or Vegetable Poisons, Stings, etc.

I used the Fluid during our present affliction with Scarlet Fever with decided advantage. It is indispensable to the sick-room.—WM. F. SANDFORD, Eyrie, Ala.

Scarlet Fever Cured.

SMALL-POX and PITTING of Small Pox PREVENTED

A member of my family was taken with Small-pox. I used the Fluid; the patient was not delirious, was not pitted, and was about the house again in three weeks, and no others had it.—J. W. PARKINSON, Philadelphia.

Diphtheria Prevented.

The physicians here use Darbys Fluid very successfully in the treatment of Diphtheria. A. STOLLENWERCK, Greensboro, Ala.

Tetter dried up.

Cholera prevented.

Ulcers purified and healed.

In cases of Death it should be used about the corpse—it will prevent any unpleasant smell.

The eminent Physician, J. MARION SIMS, M. D., New York, says: "I am convinced Prof. Darbys Prophylactic Fluid is a valuable disinfectant."

Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn. I testify to the most excellent qualities of Prof. Darbys Prophylactic Fluid. As a disinfectant and detergent it is both theoretically and practically superior to any preparation with which I am acquainted.—N. T. LUPTON, Prof. Chemistry.

Darbys Fluid is Recommended by Hon. ALEXANDER H. STEPHENS, of Georgia; Rev. CHAS. F. DEEMS, D.D., Church of the Strangers, N. Y.; Jos. LECONTE, Columbia, Prof., University, S.C. Rev. A. J. BATTLE, Prof., Mercer University; Rev. GEO. F. PIERCE, Bishop M. E. Church.

INDISPENSABLE TO EVERY HOME. Perfectly harmless. Used internally or externally for Man or Beast.

The Fluid has been thoroughly tested, and we have abundant evidence that it has done everything here claimed. For fuller information get of your Druggist a pamphlet or send to the proprietors,

A NOTED BUT UNTITLED WOMAN.

[From the Boston Globe.]

Messrs. Editors:—

The above is a good likeness of Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., who above all other human beings is the truthfully called the "Dear Friend of Woman," because of her correspondents love to call her. She is constantly devoted to her work, which is the outcome of a lifestudy, and is obliged to keep six lady assistants, to help her answer the large correspondence which daily pours in upon her, each bearing its special burden of suffering, or joy at release from it. Her Vegetable Compound is a medicine for good and not evil purposes. I have personally investigated it and am satisfied of the truth of this.

On account of its proven merits, it is recommended and prescribed by the best physicians in the country. One says: "It works like a charm and saves much pain. It will cure entirely the worst form of falling of the uterus, Leucorrhœa, Irregular and painful Menstruation, all Ovarian Troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Floodings, all Displacements and the consequent spinal weakness, and is especially adapted to the Change of Life."

It permeates every portion of the system, and gives new life and vigor. It removes faintness, flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves weakness of the stomach. It cures Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion. That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, weight and backache is always permanently cured by its use. It will at all times, and under all circumstances, act in harmony with the law that governs the female system.

It costs only $1. per bottle or six for $5., and is sold by druggists. Any advice required as to special cases, and the names of many who have been restored to perfect health by the use of the Vegetable Compound, can be obtained by addressing Mrs. P., with stamp for reply, at her home in Lynn, Mass.

For Kidney Complaint of either sex this compound is unsurpassed as abundant testimonials show.

"Mrs. Pinkham's Liver Pills," says one writer, "are the best in the world for the cure of Constipation, Biliousness and Torpidity of the liver. Her Blood Purifier works wonders in its special line and bids fair to equal the Compound in its popularity.

All must respect her as an Angel of Mercy whose sole ambition is to do good to others.

Philadelphia, Pa. (X) Mrs. A. M. D.

Daughters, Wives, Mothers!

DR. J. B. MARCHISI, UTICA, N. Y. DISCOVERER OF DR. MARCHISI'S CATHOLICON, A POSITIVE CURE FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS.

This remedy will act in harmony with the Female system at all times, and also immediately upon the abdominal and uterine muscles, and restore them to a healthy and strong condition.

Dr. Marchisi's Uterine Catholicon will cure falling of the womb, Leucorrhœa, Chronic Inflammation and Ulceration of the Womb, Incidental Hemorrhage or Flooding, Painful, Suppressed and Irregular Menstruation, Kidney Complaint, Barrenness and is especially adapted to the change of Life. Send for pamphlet free. All letters of inquiry freely answered. Address as above. For sale by all druggists. New size $1 per bottle. Old size $1.50. Be sure and ask for Dr. Marchisi's Uterine Catholicon. Take no other.

SELECT STORY.

A DRAWING ROOM COMEDY.

Mr. Thomas Bilbury is the junior partner in the great firm of Bilbury, Blackthorne & Co., tea merchants, of Calcutta and London. The senior partner is Mr. Joseph Bilbury, his father, who has a very nice house at Kew, and until a year or two ago there was a third member of the firm in the person of Thomas' uncle, Mr. Babbington Blackthorne, the Calcutta representative of the establishment. But unfortunately, Mr. Blackthorne, like many Englishmen who live in India, drank so much Scotch whiskey and Bass' ale, and ate too much curry and too many "Bombay ducks;" the result being that at the age of 55 his liver declined to bear the strain put upon it, and collapsed, leaving its owner so weak and ill that he had barely time ere he died to telegraph to his partners in England a brief notice of his impending fate. This alarming despatch arrived at a particularly inopportune moment. Mr. Thomas Bilbury had on the day previous married a very charming young lady, Lydia Lapples by name, and the intelligence of his uncle's sad condition necessitated that the newly-made husband—who, by the way, had only become acquainted with his bride about six weeks before marriage—should without a moment's delay take the train for Dover, cross to Calais, and thence go by the quickest route to Calcutta. The affair was pressing. Mr. Blackthorne's death would certainly throw the business into confusion, and any hesitation on the part of the English partners might imperil the future of the firm.

"Go at once, my dear boy," wrote Mr. Joseph Bilbury to his son, who was in the Isle of Wight, "and send your wife to me. I will take care of her, and see her settled in your new home at Richmond. I would go myself, but my gout won't allow me. And above all things, take care of your liver."

There was no help for it. Mr. Bilbury, Jr., felt that he must go; so go he did, putting the best face on the matter, and bidding a very long and tender good-bye to his poor little wife. He escorted her across to Pourtsmouth, put her in a London train, kissed her, saw her off, and then took the next train for Dover.

She settled down in her new home on Richmond Hill; and he for many months afterward worked hard at his desk in Calcutta, arranging the worldly affairs of his dead uncle, and from time to time sending home reports of his progress, and love letters to Lydia.

Two years, in fact, elapsed ere he was able to return to England; and then he returned, as he had gone out, at a moment's notice. Unfortunate circumstances suddenly left him free; and unwilling to lose a day, he took the first homeward-bound steamer, which, so it happened, was also taking to Richmond a letter written a few days earlier, in which Mr. Bilbury, among other matters, regretted to his wife that the pressure of business would not leave him at liberty for at least a month.

He traveled home without adventure, landed in due course at Dover, arrived in London late at night, and, without having written a word of warning to Lydia, hurried on next morning to Richmond Hill. Why he did not write or telegraph we cannot say; perhaps he thought his sudden appearance would agreeably surprise his wife; or perhaps he was too excited to be able to think at all. But in any case, he neither wrote nor telegraphed a single word of preparation.

It was a fine sunny morning in summer; Mr. Thomas Bilbury has scarcely seen his new home, which he had taken in a hurry immediately before his wedding; and he was walking eagerly up the short carriage drive leading to the house when, happening to cast his gaze toward the upper windows, he caught sight of a fair, white-draped figure which was watering some flowering plants that stood in a row on the sill. He at once recognized the figure as that of his wife, and was about to utter a cry of salutation when he suddenly became conscious that she did not recognize him, for with graceful modesty she withdrew from the window and disappeared as soon as she became conscious that he was watching her. An idea struck him. It was a foolish but not wholly unnatural one. He would pretend to be some one else—a friend, say, of her husband's, and would ask to see her as such. Of course she would at once recognize his voice; but then the surprise, and the consequent pleasure, would be more complete if he deferred them. He knocked, therefore, at the door, and to the servant who appeared announced that he had just returned from India and desired to see Mrs. Bilbury. He gave no name, but he was admitted and shown into the drawing-room, where, in some perturbation of mind, he awaited the advent of the wife from whom he had been so long and cruelly separated.

"I suppose that she will know me," he reflected, as he stood with his back to the window; "but it is true that I have grown a tolerably big beard since I went away, and that I have become considerably tanned. However, the beard ought to make no great difference. I suppose that she would know me if she saw me in my shirt sleeves, or with both legs cut off at the knees. On the other hand, she thinks I am still in Calcutta, for she must have had my last letter this morning. I hope my sudden appearance here won't upset her. I must be careful."

Here his thoughts were switched aside by the unmistakable sound of rustling skirts in the passage without; and as the door opened he involuntarily turned and gazed into the garden, at the same time coughing nervously.

"May I offer you a chair? I am afraid that you find the open window too much for you," said a soft voice behind him.

"O no; not at all!" he returned, facing his wife for an instant, and then hastily resuming his survey of the garden.

Mrs. Bilbury did not in the least recognize her husband. "Do let me order a fire to be lighted," she urged.

"Oh no; not for worlds!" ejaculated Tom, as he turned slowly round, conscious at last that even his nervousness was no excuse for his rudeness. "But the fact is, Mrs.—"

"My name is Mrs. Bilbury!"

"Oh! thank you—yes! The fact is, Mrs. Bilbury, that I am not yet entirely reconciled to this abominal English climate. I—ah—that is to say, a man who has existed in groves of mango—ah—and has lived on curry and chutnee—ah—with the thermometer standing doggedly at a hundred and two in the shade, is—ah; but I dare say you understand."

"Oh, perfectly, Mr. —— I think I have not the pleasure of knowing your name."

"Who am I?" thought Mr. Thomas Bilbury. "My name," he said, after a slight pause, "is Tilbury."

"What a curious similarity!" said his wife. "Yes; I can readily believe that people coming home from India find this climate very trying at first, even in summer. My husband writes that the heat in Calcutta has been excessive. Possibly, Mr. Tilbury, you may have called to give me some news of him? I hope so. I thought that his last letter was not written in very good spirits."

"That is satisfactory," thought Mr. Bilbury. "The lapse of two years has not altered her love for me."

"Yes," he said aloud; "I can give you some news of him, for, a month ago, I was at Calcutta."

"Indeed? How delightful! Do sit down, Mr. Tilbury. It is very pleasant to meet any one who has seen my husband so recently, for I gather from what you say that you have seen him. How was he?"

Mr. Bilbury was this time much exercised in his mind as to what to say next. On the one hand he was afraid to declare himself for fear of frightening his wife; on the other, he rather enjoyed the situation. He, therefore, determined for the present to retain his incognito.

"He was," he said, with deliberate hesitation, "as well as could be expected."

"As well as could be expected?" repeated Mrs. Bilbury, with alarm. "Do you mean that he has been ill?"

"Well, not exactly ill," prevaricated Tom, who had not made up his mind as to what he should say.

"But I do not understand you. Tell me, please. What has happened to him?"

Mr. Bilbury wondered what the end would be. He heartily wished that his wife would recognize him and settle the difficulty by throwing her arms around his neck.

"Nothing very serious," he said. "I dare say he has told you that he has become very fond of tiger shooting!"

"Ah, tigers! Tell me Mr. Tilbury, tell me!"

"Well, he went out tiger shooting one day as usual—ah—he was accompanied only by his servant. They entered the jungle. Suddenly, and without warning, a huge female tiger sprang upon your husband and bore him to the earth. The native fled for assistance; help arrived, and the victim was found faint from loss of blood, with his right arm torn out at the socket, his left eye destroyed and the calf of his left leg—ah—deeply scored by the cruel claws of the ferocious monster.

"Dear me, how alarming!" commented Mrs. Bilbury; and the exclamations seemed so out of proportion to the gravity of the story that Mr. Bilbury felt seriously disappointed. "That fully accounts," continued Lydia, "for his bad spirits. His right arm—"

"Yes, torn out at the socket, Mrs. Bilbury. He has learned to write with his left hand."

"Ah, dreadful! And his left eye destroyed?"

"Yes; he wears a glass eye, poor fellow."

"It must be agony. And the calf of his leg deeply scored by the cruel claws of the ferocious monster! Terrible misfortune! And when you left him, Mr. Tilbury, how was he? Will he survive?"

A new light seemed to break upon Mr. Bilbury. Did his wife want him to survive? He felt by no means sure of it.

"It is impossible to say with certainty," he said; "but you must hope for the best. Let me beg of you, my dear Mrs. Bilbury, to keep up your spirits."

"Oh, Mr. Tilbury, I don't see why I should be miserable. There is very pleasant society down here at Richmond; and, you know, there are as good fish in the sea as ever came out of it."

Tom's worst suspicions were by this time more than confirmed. "The heartless woman!" he thought. "This is how she receives the news of my being mangled and disfigured" But still, unwilling to give up hope, he continued aloud: "Poor fellow! I assure you that in his delirium your name was very often on his lips."

"Indeed! Then he had not quite forgotten me."

"Forgotten you?" repeated Tom, his feelings for an instant getting the better of him. "Oh no! I think that it is the lot of but few women to have a husband so utterly devoted to her."

"And of but few men to have a wife—"

"So charming," said Mr. Bilbury, finishing the sentence.

"Oh, Mr. Tilbury! But excuse me. Of course you will stay to luncheon. Do; to please me! You know that a woman hates solitude little less than small pox. One moment, I will just go and give the necessary orders." And Mrs. Bilbury rose and quitted the room.

"Well, this is awful!" reflected her husband as soon as he was left alone. "She doesn't recognize me and apparently she doesn't seem to care for me much. She reminds me that there are as good fish in the sea as ever came out of it. That, I suppose, means that if I would only die and liberate her, she would promptly marry some one else. A nice instance of the faithlessness of women! Perhaps I should do well to leave her at once, and never let her know the truth; but I can't do that. I love her still; indeed, I'm afraid I love her more than I ever did. No; I will see this affair to the end. If she is unfaithful, I will out, and then"—

"His meditations were cut short by the return of his wife, who informed him that she had ordered some luncheon, and that he must meanwhile do his best to amuse her, as there was no one else in the house except the servants. This style of conversation made Tom more and more reckless; and at once he launched out into an account of an imaginary moonlight picnic at Aden, where—so he let it appear—he had broken the hearts of several charming girls, and upon the whole had behaved in a highly reprehensible manner.

"It must have been very delightful," said Mrs. Bilbury. "I wish I had been there! Sometimes we have very pleasant evenings here. Of course, I know every one in the neighborhood, and, as a married woman, I ask whom I like to my house. You must come one night, Mr. Tilbury, and sup with us afterward."

By this time Tom was perfectly frantic. "I'm afraid I shant be here long," he said, bitterly. "I'm going abroad. I can't rest anywhere."

"You are worried, I see," said Mrs. Bilbury. "I can sympathize with you."

"Yes, family matters and disappointments, you know."

"Disappointments! But you are young, and, if you will excuse me, not bad-looking. Perhaps you have merely lost your heart to one of the young ladies at Aden."

"Oh, no," he replied. "And, to tell the truth, I am doubtful whether any woman would be worthy worrying about."

"Don't be cynical," said Mrs. Bilbury, with a smile. "Perhaps you expect too much from women."

"I expect sympathy, fidelity and consideration," answered Mr. Bilbury, gravely.

"But, let me ask you, do you yourself indulge in these virtues? Ah! men are very inconsistaut, I fear. However, I hope that you do not believe that women are bad as a rule."

"Well, I know to my cost that some are bad. Yes, some even betray their husbands."

"And in such cases I'm afraid that the husbands are also to blame."

"I don't think so," said Tom curtly.

"But you are worrying yourself, I see, although you try to effect indifference. What is it?"

"Worrying myself? not a bit of!" cried Mr. Bilbury.

"I am glad to hear you say so," returned his wife. "I don't worry myself. Cosy suppers and—"

"But the probable death of your husband?" interjaculated Mr. Bilbury.

"Oh, I am philosophial. We only lived together two days; we only knew each other for a few weeks. What am I to him? What is he to me? Life is still before me."

"That is rather plain speaking," thought Tom. "I wonder whether she would like to get up a flirtation with me? I will draw her out a little."

"Ah!" he said aloud, "you have happiness within your grasp, and you can make another happy. It is not every man who is so fortunate as to meet with a woman like you. Now, I confess that I have been unfortunate in my experence. But if I thought that I might hope for your sympathy—"

"Surely, Mr. Bilbury, it would be unmanly of me to refuse it."

Tom drew his chair nearer to that of his wife, and continued; "Oh, if I might hope for your sympathy and look for your regerd and pity, my dear Mrs. Bilbury, life I assure you, would soon assume a new complexion to my eyes. Let us be plain. Can you not make me happy, and bestow your sympathy, your love and your pity upon one who will value such gifts at their true worth?"

Mrs. Bilbury, evidently agitated, rose, "Really," she exclaimed, "I was not prepared for all this. I feel the need of love, love such as pours; but—" And she buried her face in her hands.

"This," thought Mr. Bilbury to himself, "is my faithful and devoted wife," yet he was unable to refrain from seating himself beside Lydia and putting his arm around her waist. "Dear Mrs. Bilbury," he said, "I love you! Do you, can you love me?"

She gave a scarcely preceptible gesture of assent; and Tom, now thoroughly convinced of his wife's untrustworthiness, sprang up and confronted her.

"Mrs. Bilbury," what would your husband say to this? You have disgraced him!

She looked up and held out her hands imploringly.

"You are a vicious woman!" he continued, unrelentingly.

"Then, why, just now, did you ask for my love?" she demanded.

"Because I wanted to assure myself that you were as vicious and worthless as I know you to be. As for loving you—I despise you! Ah! if you were only a good woman! And he approached her and took her by the hand. For an instant he stood thus; then he raised the hand and kissed it, and finally he kissed his wife on the cheek.

"Are you going, Mr. Bilbury?" she asked.

"Yes, I had better go; it is for the best. We could not be happy. Good bye!" he kissed her again, and then moved slowly away to the door, where he stood, painfully regarding her.

"Good-bye!" she echoed. "But," she continued in another voice, "Tom!"

"Tom!" repeated Mr. Bilbury, starting and coloring. "Who told you my name was Tom?"

"You did, you foolish fellow, about two years ago."

"And you know me, Lydia?" he cried, as he quickly returned to her. "You have known me all along?"

"No; I did not know you until you told me that tremendous story about the tiger. There was no mistaking you then?"

By this time Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bilbury were embracing each other so affectionately that the conversation was rendered very fragmentary and disjointed. It is, therefore, almost impossible to chronicle what they said; but it is certain that they forgave each other, and it is a matter of notoriety that there has since been no happier couple on Richmond Hill.—Chamber's Journal.

A Scientific Discovery.

A NEW AND MOST IMPORTANT THEORY ONE OF THE MOST VITAL QUESTIONS OF THE DAY.

If anyone had informed Queen Elizabeth in her palmiest days that she could have been seated in her palace in London and conversed with Sir Walter Raleigh in his North Caroiina home; receiving a reply from him within an hour's time, she would have declared it to be a miracle. And yet, had they lived in the present day, this apparent miracle would most readily have been witnessed and not seem at all strange or unnatural. The truth is, new principles are coming into existence, and the operation of many laws unknown in the past is being fully understood in the present. In no way does this fact come more forcibly to the mind than in the care and treatment of the human body. Millions of people have died in past ages from some insignificant or easily controlled cause which is and thoroughly understood now readily handled. Consumptiondaring the entire past hasbeen considered an incurable disease. And yet it is demonstfated that it has been and can be cured, even after it has had a long run. Dr. Felix Oswald has just contributed a notable article on the subject to the Popular Science Monthly. He regards consumption pulmonary scrofula. The impurities of the blood produce a constant irritation in the lungs, thus destroying their delicate tissues and causing death. His theory shows conclusively that consumption is a blood disease. It has its origin primarily in a deranged condition of the kidneys or liver, the only two organs of the body, aside from the lungs, that purify the blood. When the kidneys or the liver is diseased they are in a sore or lacerated state which communicates poison to every ounce of bl

BLOOMSBURG, PA.

FRIDAY, JUNE 1, 1883.

Governor Pattison has vetoed twelve bills thus far.

We have been obliged to discontinue the publication of legislative proceedings, because none of the dailies publish them in full. The Patriot gave them for a time, but for some reason has discontinued. As soon as the Pamphlet laws are printed we will publish all acts of general interest, in full.

ExGovernor A. G. Curtin says that only three of the eighteen war Governors who assembled at the Altoona conference in 1862 now survive. He is one of them, Sprague, of Rhode Island, and Kirkwood, of Iowa, completing the trio. Governor Curtin, in person, communicated to President Lincoln the object of the conference.

The Democratic State Executive Committee held a meeting at Harrisburg last week to make arrangements for the State Convention which will be held in that city on the first Wednesday in August. Harry E. Packer of Mauch Chunk was elected a member of the committee to fill the vacancy caused by the death of his brother, R. A. Packer.

The skeleton of a man has been discovered in the woods near Tamaqua. The remains are believed to be those of Jas. Campbell, a Brooklyn lawyer, who wandered from home in a state of mental aberation in April, 1882, and was seen in Tamaqua, where his wife, who had come on in search of her husband lost all trace of him. Campbell's friends have been notified.

The shoe manufacturers and shoe operators of Cincinnati have come to an understanding and terminated the lockout which has kept twenty-five hundred men idle for a fortnight. The workmen retract their refusal to finish goods commenced by non-union men, and all hands have resumed work in all the shops and will leave the settlement of the difficulty to a committee of arbitration.

Messrs. Vanderslice and Bryson are both reported as not voting on the act to repeal the Boss railway act, on third reading. The bill was defeated. This was a reform measure on which every member should have had an opinion and boldly expressed it one way or the other. Sometimes a failure to vote at all is equivalent to voting the wrong way.

The great bridge between New York and Brooklyn was formally opened with imposing ceremonies on Friday last. President Arthur and Cabinet were present. Speeches were made by Mayors Edson and Lowe of the respective cities, Hon. Abraham S. Hewitt, and Rev. Dr. Storrs. About 6000 people crossed the bridge during the first hour after it was open to the public. The structure is one of the greatest triumphs of engineering of the world.

It is evident that the Republican senate does not intend to permit the passage of the apportionment bills if they can help it. This is apparent from the fact that though the House promptly messaged its non concurrence in the senate amendments to the Legislative bill last week Wednesday, President protem Reyburn did not appoint a conference committee until this week. When asked by Senator King for information on the matter, Reyburn's only reply was that the Senate's action had not yet been messaged in the House. Such delays within a few days of the close of the session cannot be misunderstood.

DEATH OF JUDGE SHARSWOOD.

Ex-Chief Justice George Sharswood died at his residence in Philadelphia on Monday morning last, aged 73 years. He graduated with distinguished honors at the University of Pennsylvania, at eighteen, and was admitted to the Bar in 1831. At twenty-six he was elected a member of the Legislature, and was appointed a Judge for Philadelphia at thirty-five. In 1850 he was chosen Professor of Law in the University, and in 1851 elected Judge under the new constitution, which position he held until 1868 when he was elected by the Democratic party to the Supreme Bench. He became Chief Justice in 1878 and continued as such until last December when his term expired. His ability at grasping a subtle legal point, and his logical reasoning made him one of the ablest jurists of the State. He was the author of several law books which are recognized all over the country as works of great value to the profession.

The Congressional Bill.

The Senate passed the McCracken Congressional apportionment bill on Tuesday, and defeated Stewart's. The former makes 19 Republican districts and 9 Democratic, the latter would give the Republicans 17 and the Democrats 11. The House already passed a bill making 15 Republican and 13 Democratic districts. There will now be a committee of conference appointed, and the possibilities are that no apportionment will be made. In the discussion on the McCracken bill Senator Wolverton showed the unfairness of the Republican party. He thought that if the Garfield vote is the fair basis then it is a mere matter of arithmetical calculation. "The bill as reported by the committee is unfair and unjust, and cannot be defended except it be that they regard party duty higher than the constitution and requirements. Neither can the senator from Dauphin defend his work on the ground of industrial requirements. The industries of Pennsylvania are fostered and cared for by the democratic party, but we are not propose to discuss protection. In 1880 the total vote was 874,739, giving a congressional ratio of 31,241. The Garfield vote was 444,704 and the Hancock vote 407,428. By a mere system of calculation, on a fair basis, this ratio gives fourteen republicans and an excess vote of 7,330, and thirteen democrats with an excess vote of 1,295." The senator showed where in twelve districts under the McCracken apportionment the vote was 143,831 short, nearly enough for a congressional district. He showed how in Philadelphia it took 76,000 votes to elect one democrat to congress and only 19,000 votes to elect a republican, and where it took 23,000 votes in the state to elect a republican to 43,000 to elect a democrat. "Party necessity alone can bring about a justification," was the conclusion of the senator.

The Czar's Coronation.

A SUCCESS IN EVERY PARTICULAR.

The coronation of the Czar of Russia took place at Moscow on May 27th without the slighest hitch. The ceremony was most brilliant. The ceremonies were announced at 7 o'clock by theringing of hundreds of bells and the thunder of artillery. Every available space along the route of the the procession was occupied and windows were let for fabulous sums. Shortly before 6 o'clock great bodies of military were stationed along the route of the procession and occupied the streets on either side, keeping the people back on the walk. The dignitaries of the realm who were to take part in the actual ceremony entered the Cathedral at 7:30 a. m. followed by Princes of foreign governments, the nobility of Russia, and the special and regular Ambassadors of foreign countries. The utmost care was exercised to prevent the admission of authorized persons. As the royal pair appeared at the doors of the palace the immense multitude uncovered their heads and burst into loud acclamations.

When the procession reached the palace it was met by the Emperor, wearing the uniform of a Colonel of the Imperial Guard, and by the Empress, dressed in the Russian national costume of black velvet,richly embroidered with diamonds and precious stones. The Empress leaned on the arm of her royal consort and the pair placed themselves beneath a canopy richly wrought in silk and gold and borne by thirty-two generals of high military rank.

Upon entering the portals of the Cathedral the Emperor and Empress knelt before the sacred images which flanked the doors and were then conducted to the ancient thrones of ivory and silver. After their majesties had been seated the Metropolitan of Novgorod asked the Emperor: "Are you a true believer?" The Emperor falling on his knees, read in reply the Lord's prayer and the Apostles' Creed of the Greek Church. The Metropolitan responding: "May the Grace of the Holy Ghost remain with thee."

The customary summons, "If there be any of you here present who knows any impediment for which Alexander, son of Alexander,should not be crowned by the grace ofGod, Emperor and autocrat of all the Russias, of Moscow, of Keiff, etc, etc., let him come forward now in the name of the Holy Trinity and show what the impediment is, or let him remain dumb, forever,"was read three times by the Bishop.

After reading selections from the Gospel the Metropolitan ascended the dais, and invested the Emperor with the imperial mantle of ermine, the Metropolitan of Moscow saying, "cover and protect thy people as this robe protects and covers thee."

The Emperor responded: "I will: I will: I will: God keeping."

The Metropolitan then invoked the blessing of Almighty God upon him and his reign and delivered to Alexander the III the crown of Russia, and he placed it upon his head.

The Empress then knelt before him and was formally crowned. After the Empress had been duly invested with the Imperial mantle, the Archdeacon intoned the Imperial titles and sang Dominie Salvum Fac Imperatorem, which was taken up and thrice repeated by the choir.

Directly after this part of the ceremony was finished bells in all churches rang out and a solute of 101 guns was fired.

After congratulations the Emperor knelt and recited a prayer. The Bishop of Moscow said aloud in behalf of the nation, a fervent prayer for happiness of their Majesties. Shouts of "Long Live the Emperor," then rent the Cathedral and were taken up by the multitude and were carried to the remotest parts of the city where it was speedily known that another Czar of the Russias had been crowned.

The Czar's manifesto was issued in the evening and caused great rejoicing. The Czar has addressed the following to the Minister of Foreign affairs, upon whom he has conferred the order of St. Alexandria Newski; Great power and glory by Russia! Thanks to Divine Providence the extent of her empire and her numerous population leave no room for any idea of further conquests. My solicitude is exclusively to the peaceable development of the country and its prosperity, to the preservation of friendly relations with foreign powers on the basis of existing treaties to the maintenance of the dignity of the Empire.

The Emperor and Empress then proceeded to the gate of the sanctuary where they were anointed and both partook of the sacrament and then left the cathedral. Upon entering the palace the Emperor turned and saluted the people who immediately uncovered their heads, cheering enthusiastically and blessing the Czar. An Imperial banquet was given in the afternoon at which the Emperor and Empress, wearing their crowns, were present.

Murder in Lycoming County.

Last Friday evening about six o'clock says the Williamsport Gazette & Bulletin, the dead body of Charles Hanker was found hanging by the neck dead in a barn in Nippenose township, near Jersey Shore Station. Michael Curts, Esq., empaneled a jury and proceeded to examine the body of deceased. It was found that the neck was broken and that there were other suspicious marks and bruises on the body, which led the jury to believe that the crime of murder had been committed and that Samuel Cook was the guilty party. A verdict to that effect was rendered, when Cook was at once arrested and held on the charge.

Hanker was a Swiss by birth and had been in this country for some time, and was in the employ of Cook, who works a small farm on the road leading to Jersey Shore. Cook claims that he missed Hanker all day, and then found him hanging by the neck in the stable But this story is not generally believed Cook has for a long time been the terror of that part of the country, and was regarded as an outlaw. He had been on a spree for a week before this affair, and it is suspicioned that he murdered Hanker and then hung him up,as Smith did Miller, for the purpose of hiding his crime. The people of that township believe that he is capable of committing the crime that he is charged with, and are not surprised at the turn affairs have taken. A close investigation of the affair will at once be made, and every circumstance bearing on the crime will be noted, so that if murder has been committed in that county again, the perpetrator of it may be punished.

Jefferson Davis expresses the opinion that Generals McClellan and Meade, were the ablest military men in the Union service during the great rebellion.

The Defeat of the Labor Bills.

The republican Norristown Herald, intent on making a little capital for its party, charges that the democratic house of representatives has neglected the interests of labor and defeated the measures before that body designed to protect and benefit the working classes. The editor of that sheet must be a cross-eyed fellow whose strabismus causes him to mistake one political party for another.

The fact is just the opposite of what is charged by that unscrupulous republican sheet. The democratic house of representatives passed the Hines employers' liability bill and the bill requiring the payment of employers fortnightly instead of monthly. These bills have both been killed by the republican senate. The workingmen of the state were peculiarly interested in the passage of these measures and they can thank the republican party for their defeat.

Legislation for the amelioration of the condition of the working classes is too serious a matter to be made the play thing of demagogues. The peculiar representatives of the labor element in the house of representatives gave their earnest and unremitting attention to the preparation and perfection of measures calculated to meet the wants of that element. Such measures were presented and passed in the house as before stated. But the republican senate, controlled by politicians whose own election as well as the success of their party has been brought about by the lavish expenditure of campaign funds collected in part at least from the employers of labor, dared not pass the bills sent to that body by the house. The stalwart bosses will again require the cash of the moneyed aristocrats who have more than once come to their rescue and they could not afford to offend them by passing bills in the interest of labor. Hence the defeat of the Hines liability bill and the fortnightly pay bill by the republican senate. In view of this record the republican politicians will find it rather difficult to play the demagogue on the labor question.—Patriot.

Centralia Happenings.

The two following dispatches were sent from Ashland to the Philadelphia Times, and appeared in that paper on Saturday last. The dispatches are each dated May 25th:

Two months ago a Pole, named Jacob Meriwisky, came to Centralia and opened a saloon. He was patronized by his countrymen and the roughest of the other nationalities. Being unable to read or write English he requested the English-speaking habitues to charge themselves with the amounts they were indebted. They did so and all the prominent business men were startled by the presentation of bills for liquor at Polish Jake's. They indignantly refused to pay, saying they had never entered the saloon and that other parties had used their names. An investigation of Polish Jake's books showed this to be true. Henry Ward Beecher, according to the book, owes $42; John B. Gough, $35; Roscoe Conkling, $39; Freddy Gebhard, $17; Mrs. Langtry, $30; and Mace and Slade, $40. The loss to the saloon-keeper is $700.

Centralia and the adjoining towns are excited over a desperate affray that occurred there last night. Two chicken-fanciers, named Mike Cleary and Edward Dillon had arranged for a cocking-main, to be fought at nine o'clock. A large crowd had gathered. At half-past nine they opened the main. By this time the crowd had grown noisy and turbulent. As soon as Cleary's bird was put into the pit Dillon's bird struck it a terrific blow, killing it instantly. Enraged, Cleary sprang out and said he could whip any man in the house. No one auswering him, he sprang towards Dillon and struck him a terrific blow in the face. This was the signal for a general row, and some one in the crowd extinguished the lights. In the fight that followed knives and pistols were freely used. At last the saloon-keeper and a number of friends got the scuffling crowd out. Cleary went to his home and was followed by Dillon, who asked him why he had struck him. Cleary made no answer, but struck him again. Both men then grappled and were struggling in each other's embrace when Cleary's wife and two men entered and went to his assistance. The four then beat Dillon unmercifully and would probably have killed him but for the opportune arrival of two of his friends, who after a desperate struggle succeeded in saving him. While carrying him home Cleary's wife crept up behind them and struck the insensible man a terrible blow on the back of the head with a large stone, weighing about twelve pounds. The back of his head was split open and there is very little hopes of his recovery.

No effort has yet been made to arrest the assailants. All the men are miners, living at Centralia, and have heretofore borne good reputations.

Strawberries have appeared in the market. Look out now for a heavy crop of church festivals.

A fine lot of cabbage, tomato, celery and beet plants for sale by W. H. Yetter, Bloomsburg, Pa. 2w

The Reformed Church congregation will have an ice cream and strawberry festival in Evans' Hall this Friday and Saturday evenings.

R. H. Ringler is local agent for the Mutual Life Insurance Co., of New York. This is one of the oldest and strongest companies in the country.

The latest style—the "Broadway" silk hat—now for sale at D. Lowenberg's.

The Lycoming Chronicle is still for sale. To a young man of energy this is a first class opportunity. The office can be purchased at a reasonable figure.

Andrew W. Gager father of Mrs. R. Buckalew, died on Tuesday at noon after a long illness. The funeral took place on Thursday afternoon from the house.

A large stock of silver-plated knives and forks, as low as two dollars a set, also casters, butter dishes, &c., at Bernhard's jewelry store.

For some reason the cemetery company is very slow in putting the grounds in shape. The appearance at the entrance is not at all attractive in its present condition.

A number of papers have announced that Thomas Chalfant of Danville will be a candidate for congress under the new apportionment bill, but Mr. Chalfant denies it. The apportionment bill has not passed yet.

The Commencement exercises of the Normal School will be held three weeks from next Thursday. (June 28th). A good attendance is looked for. These exercises are increasing in interest each year.

You can secure a fine $250 organ for $115, at $3.00 per month, by joining the Estey Organ Club of Bloomsburg, Pa.

We are indebted to Mr. C. E. Monroe for a pamphlet containing the minutes of the Fifteenth session of the Central Pennsylvania Annual Conference of the M. E. church, held in Chambersburg from March 14 to the 20th.

E. A. Rawling has purchased a light wagon of M. C. Sloan & Bro. It is a new pattern, and is very pretty, while at the same time they are not as expensive as other makes. It has the side bar springs.

The examination for graduation takes place at the Normal School next Monday, June 4th. There are thirty-nine scholars in the class. Three in the Scientific course. In the Elementary course are twenty-one ladies and fifteen gentlemen.

Three hundred packages of adulterated teas intended for consumption in the coal regions have been seized in New York and shipped back to London. Perhaps the cockneys think any kind of herbs good enough for Pennsylvania coal miners.

Mr. B. F. Hartman has in his possession an older patent deed than the one mentioned last week. It is very similar in appearance to Mr. Hidley's, but is dated July 13th 1773. It was made by Thomas and John Penn to William Ross for land in this county.

W. B. Poust, agent D. L. & W. R. R., Bloomsburg, can now sell a ticket direct and check baggage through to nearly every railroad town in the United States. He does not give a ticket part way and an order in some other office for the balance of the distance, but gives the ticket through. may 25-tf

Gen. W. W. H. Davis has been editor and proprietor of the Doylestown Democrat for twenty-five years, his first paper having been issued May 25th, 1858. The paper is one of the largest and best weeklies in the State. May the editor live to serve his party and his country many years to come.

Cheapest Fashion Magazine in the world, 120 large pages, 4 pages new music, 1000 engravings each issue. 50 cents per year; single copies 15 cts. Strawbridge & Clothier, 8th & Market Sts., Phila.

The ladies of St. Columba's R. C. Church will have a festival in Knorr & Wintersteen's Hall on the evening of June 8th and 9th. As this church is making a strong effort to put itself on a self sustaining basis it should receive the liberal patronage of the public.

A complete assortment of the best American watches, both in hunting and open cases, warranted from two to five years, at L. Bernhard's jewelry store.

Two children named Crawford were burned so badly at Buckhorn last Friday that they died in a short time. They were left alone in the house, and attempted to kindle a fire with coal oil, when the can burst, throwing the oil on them, and burning them with fatal result. We have not learned their ages. The funeral took place on Sunday afternoon.

The property of the late William Webb deceased, which is advertised for sale in this paper, under proceedings in partition, is one of the most desirable locations for a dwelling in the town. It consists of two lots on Market street, corner of Fourth, on one of which is erected a good frame dwelling, barn &c. There is a bargain in it. See advertisement in another column.

What to wear and how to wear it are questions often asked. Call at the Leading Merchant Tailor of Bloomsburg and full information can always be obtained, at the popular store of David Lowenberg.

Sheriff Mourey has been telegraphing to learn something of Heffron, the escaped convict. The commissioners refuse to offer a reward for his capture. The county commissioners had a meeting on Saturday last, and took steps towards putting the jail in proper condition. A survey was made and it was found that there was a fall of 14 feet from the jail to the lock.

A beautiful line of gent's underwear, consisting of gauze and balbriggan. Medium weights just opened, at D. Lowenberg's.

We would caution our readers to see that everything is securely fastened about the premises on show day. A gang of thieves and pickpockets always follows a circus to take advantage of the crowd, and break into houses left unprotected. We notice a number of such robberies in our exchanges. If you leave your house on show day, lock every door and window.

Miss Bisel, of Williamsport, will be at the Exchange Hotel Monday June 4th, for the purpose of giving instructions in art Embroidery, and the new Ribbon work. Ladies interested in this work will do well to call and see samples, which will consist of everything new in the line. Miss Bisel will remain for a short time. Ladies will please call as early as possible.

"The latest style and lowest prices," is the business motto of D. Lowenberg.

Two women of Espy have got themselves in the meshes of the law through the medium of their tempers. One appeared before J. M. Clark Esq., and complained of the other who was upon hearing bound over to keep the peace. This defendant thereupon had the prosecutrix in the first case arrested on a warrant issued by Esquire Morris, on a charge of assault and battery, and she too was placed under bail to appear at court. The best thing for both to do is to settle their difficulties at home.

A large and popular excursion will go from Williamsport to Watkins Glen on Friday, June 13. It will occur the day after the adjournment of the State Teacher's Association and a large number of the teachers will go. The rates are remarkably low, but to secure them there must be at least two hundred persons who will pledge themselves to go. The round trip ticket, including an hour and a half's ride on Seneca Lake in a magnificent steamer with the privilege of eating your lunch on the boat, and also free admission into the glen, and all for $3 for each person. Excursion rates could probably be obtained from Rupert if a sufficient number of persons should indicate a desire to go on this trip.

HEAD QUARTERS FOR G. A. R. SUITS AND CAPS.

The suits sold at D. Lowenberg's give perfect satisfaction. The suits sold by D. Lowenberg keep their color—in fact all the members of the G. A. R. are satisfied who bought their suits of D. Lowenberg and recommend them to their comrades. A new lot just received at the Popular Clothing Store of David Lowenberg.

A suit that involves the legal point as to how far a parent's right to claim the wages of a minor child extends, and what amounts to the emancipation of a minor, was tried before Esquire Morris one day last week. William Hawkins, son of Thomas Hawkins, worked for several months for Dr. Gardner, who paid the boy according to contract. Young Hawkins has worked for quite a number of people at different times, making his own contracts, and drawing his pay, and the father had never objected, or notified his son's employers that he would expect settlement to be made with him. Hawkins now sues Dr. Gardner for his son's wages. The Justice gave a judgment in favor of the plaintiff for $98, on the general ground that a parent is entitled to the wages of his minor child. The case will no doubt be appealed, and the question will be determined in court.

The Fishing Creek Railroad.

There is another move being made in the direction of a railroad up Fishing creek, and the only difficulty in the way of its success can be overcome by the residents along the proposed line. Col. Jamison is at the head of the movement, and he represents a firm who make the following proposition: If the people along the line will furnish the right of way and the ties, taking their pay in stock, the road can be built. This is a fair offer, as the road would develop the country greatly, and be of lasting benefit to the entire region through which it would run. Upon the present effort depends the question as to whether a road will ever be built up the creek. If not done soon, other roads will enter the coal and timber region of Sullivan county, and the Fishingcreek road will never be heard of. Now is the time to act.

Our Agents.

W. L. Manning and J. F. Derr are our authorized canvassers for Freeze's History of Columbia county in Fishingcreek, Benton, Sugarloaf, Pine, Jackson, Madison, Greenwood and Orange townships. Orders may be left at Dieterick's book store, Berwick, at J. D. Bodine's in Mainville, and T. W. Hartman's, Espy.

See our 20 cent boxes of writing paper and envelopes. They are of good quality with unique designs. Cheapest in town at the COLUMBIAN store.

Memorial Day.

Under the direction of Ent Post, G. A. R. the observance of Decoration day was elaborately carried out. The Post went to Orangeville in the morning where there was quite a number of members, and strewed flowers on the graves of their deceased comrades. A little after two o'clock the procession was formed on Market street, consisting of the Bloomsburg Cornet Band, Ent Post, and the Fire department, and marched up main street, to Normal school, where it was increased by the members of the literary societies. At the cemetery an excellent address was made by Col. S. Knorr, which closed the exercises of the day.

Fire Department Inspection.

The annual inspection of the Bloomsburg Fire department took place on Wednsday afternoon at one o'clock and was a success in every way. The programme as announced last week was carried out. All the apparatus was in line, the Friendship engine being drawn by W. Gilmore's fine black team, and the Rescue hook and ladder truck also being drawn by horses. The companies made a very fine appearance, and it was a common remark along the street that Bloomsburg had no occasion to be ashamed of her firemen. The Town council inspected the apparatus and will no doubt order some needed repairs and provide some necessary machinery.

The Great O'Brien Show.

THE CIRCUS ROYAL A GOOD SHOW—THE MALE AND FEMALE RIDERS FIRST CLASS—THE ELEPHANT THE BEST PERFORMING ANIMAL IN THE WORLD—THE CIRCUS ROYAL IS A LADY CIRCUS AND A FIRST CLASS MENAGERIE AT POPULAR PRICES.

WE RECOMMEND IT TO THE PUBLIC GENERALLY.

THE AGGREGATION IS ALL THAT IT IS ADVERTISED—A FIRST CLASS EXHIBITION.

[From the Oil City Derrick, the leading first-class Journal of the Pennsylvania Oil Fields—Oil City, May 15, 1883.]

Saturday morning early the Circus Royal pitched its tents on the Seneca street grounds. The rain poured down at about the same time, and kept pouring down with occasional intermissions for breath, all day. But there was a large crowd on hand to see the street parade, and although the grounds about the tent were soon beaten into a soft pasty mud, and little rivulets of water ran down the canvas upon the spectators, there were audiences for both afternoon and evening performances. The manager of the circus said this was their sixteenth day of rain, and under the circumstances it could not be expected that the show would be up to its best. Nevertheless, the ring performance was good, and had the horses not been obliged to wade through mud, and the riders and tumblers forced to exercise caution the audience would have been treated to a first-class exhibition. The circus has good riders, both male and female with it, and among them some of the best in the United States. They have also a trick elephant, which is superior to any other ever shown in the ring. The menagerie contains many rare and curious beasts, and their aggregation is all that it is advertised to be. In this respect the people were disappointed; many thinking that because the admission price was low the show was a cheap one, when in fact it is a leading circus and menagerie with popular prices of admission. This show exhibits in Bloomsburg, on Thursday, June 7th.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

Keokuk, Iowa.—Dr. E. E. Fuller says: "I have used Brown's Iron Bitters in my own family with excellent results."

PHYSICIAN'S WINE OF THE OPORTO GRAPE.

New York Physician's say that they have been using Speer's Port Grape Wine and Iron Bitters in their practice for years, to the entire satisfaction of their patients and themselves, and take great pleasure in recommending them to the public as being all that is claimed for them, and in fact, the most reliable they can find. It is especially recommended for consumptives, the aged and for females generally. For sale by C. A. Kleim, Bloomsburg Pa.

Elm Grove, N. C.—Dr. G. N. Roberson says: "I prescribe Brown's Iron Bitters and find it all it is recommended to be."

Backache, stitches in the side, inflation and soreness of the bowels, are symptoms of a disordered state of the digestive and assimilative organs, which can be promptly and thoroughly corrected by the use of Ayer's Cathartic Pills. As dinner pills, and as aids to digestion they have no equal. They cure constipation.

BETTER THAN $10,000!

"I spent over $10,000, in 23 years," said Major H. W. Hines, of Boston, Mass., "in being doctored for epilepsy. I employed the best physicians in New Orleans, St. Louis, N. York, Phila, Boston, London and Paris, but all to no purpose. Samaritan Nervine has cured me entirely." $1.50

*Both Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier are prepared at 233 and 235 Western Avenue, Lynn, Mass. Price of either $1. Six bottles for $5. Send postal card for samples.

From one of the largest and best Paris houses we have some splendid lots of Dress Goods, all told about two hundred full pieces, that were not ready for delivery until long after the time, and on account thereof were reduced twenty-five per cent. all around.

This makes some famous bargains:

A 41-inch All-wool Illuminated Beige, 45c.
A 43-inch All-wool Crepe Beige, 50c. Far under value.
A 45-inch Cashmere Beige, 60c. Far under value.

A 42-inch All-wool Albatross, 60c. Far under value.
A 41-inch All-wool Albatross, 75c. Far under value.

The following lots are very desirable:

A 40-inch All-wool French Shooda, 50c.
A 42-inch All-wool French Shooda, 75c.
A 42-inch All-wool Pin's Head Check, 60c.
A 31-inch Nun's Veiling [creams], 35c.

The steady increase of our Dress Goods Department must be owing to the constant watch to keep our prices the lowest. We could not afford to cut off dress patterns and take them back, as our rules compel, when others sold at lower rates, so we are on the alert all the time to protect ourselves by marking the lowest figures going.

A magnificent lot of newly imported Lyons Black Grenadines, warranted all silk. The designs are rich and beautiful. Two qualities, $1.25 and $1.50, which is said to be less than half the cost of importation. Before the goods reached the counters twenty dresses were sold by the sample piece that customers saw in passing. We have some other black goods at half price.

There is a new counter for 9 and 12c. Satin and Gros Grain Ribbons, of which we have all colors.

The new Waukenphast shoe is about the best thing yet that has been done for men, if comfort for the feet is considered. Only first-class workmen can make them, and, as yet, we have not been able to make sufficient quantities to get the price lower than $7; but this is a dollar less than, we are told, is asked elsewhere.

15-yard lengths of summer silks, 35 to 65c.
Glace Changeable silks, 65c.
New India silks, black grounds, small white figures, very handsome, at $1.50.
A fair black silk is going now for 75c, and quite a good one for a dollar.
If you will pay $1.50, we have a quality of the Bellor make that we recommend, and will ask you to recommend after wearing it.

20-inch black Satin Parasol, lined in various colors, ten gilt ribs, handsome natural stick, spanish lace trimmed. Price $3.

A Talk With a Dude.

A NEW YORK REPORTER INTERVIEWS THE FREAK—WHAT A DUDE IS ANYWAY —AN INTERESTING TALK.

From the New York Sun.

At high noon a youth emerged from the Brunswick and stood for a moment in the brilliant blaze of the May sun listlessly buttoning his glove. He was languid, sombre and inert. Up and down Fifth avenue stages rumbled and roared, and carriages whirled The doors of the hotels slammed incessantly, brightly dressed women tripped by, men strode briskly to and fro, laughing nurse maids led groops of frolicsome children toward the park, and even the cabmen whistled and sang as they went about their work. It was a cheerful scene.

The youth did not seem interested in anything. Men who passed glanced at him somewhat contemptuously, or with palpable sneers; women looked admiringly. He was narrow-chested, and his legs were lank and wavering. On his head was a bell crowned English beaver, with a morning band two inches wide, and around his neck he wore a collar of preposterous height. A drab covert coat, such as Englishmen wear when they go to "meet," was buttoned closely around his far from robust figure. The garment was so short that the end of his spike-tail coat tail fell far below it, producing a wierd and worn effect. His trousers was so tight that the uneven contour of his legs excited pity, and his feet were squeezed into long and narrow shoes. Over his vest dangled a single glass, and he wore English dogskin gloves, the color of ripe brick dust. He had a silver tipped cane under his left arm and stood with one foot far in advance of the other. His hat was tipped back on his head, and his hair brushed forward at the sides, and he displayed evidence of a vapid mustache. But the most noticeable thing about him was the expression of his face. He meant to appear haughty. Instead he looked insolent.

He was a dude.

Presently another youth swung around the corner. He was a counterpart of the first, and their attire was precisely similar, even to the total brick-dust gloves. They approached each other solemnly, and then the new-comer drawled:

"How are you, my brave boy?"

"Eh? Oh, I cawnt say as I'm too brisk, don't you know? I'm freakish today."

"You look a bit queer."

"Yaas. I've been in the eating houses here trying to worry down a bit of chop with some shandygaff. How are you?"

"Oh, I'm fine you know. I took a tub this mawning, then tooled me new cart up the avenue, and had a good appetoit for breakfast."

"Rathah decent fun."

"Yaas."

"See you at the club later."

Upon which the new-comer, with a face expressive of great exhaustion, ambled away. The first youth still stood in front of the hotel and gazed indifferently about him. For a long time he stood there, while the Sun reporter remained in the back ground regarding him with reverential awe, and reflecting that the dude was the only thing in the world that had not been interviewed. A little time passed and then—

"I beg your pardon," said the reporter.

"Ow?" asked the youth slowly.

"I beg your pardon."

"Ah," said the youth, and after glancing casually at the reporter, he continued placidly: "I don't remember to have met you."

"No," said the reporter thoughtfully, while the youth gazed upon him with immense contempt, "but I wish to ask you a question or two about a matter of great importance."

"Oh, you don't say! rather an artful idea, I'm sure. What do you wish to ask about?"

"The dude."

The youth started, sharply at the reporter for an instant, and then resumed the air of indifference as he said "Well."

"There is a widespread rumor down town that a cat chased a dude up Fifth avenue yesterday at sundown."

"Oh, I say!" said the youth with a tranquil smile. "It's quite too bad, don't chew know, to put it upon the—er—aw—dude, y'know, loike that. The dude's not hawf so bad as painted! Chased by a cat—haw!"

"No truth in it at all?"

"Whoy, I'd lad a quid to a bob any toime that it's pure guy," said the youth with some animation; "and I tell you what," he continued, "the—aw—dude, don't chew know, is wretchedly misunderstood."

"What is a dude?"

"A dude," answered the youth slowly, "is a gentleman. A cad can never be a dude. He must not be in trade, but must have money. I dare say there are dudes who have very little money, but they have blood y'know, But the point of the thing is that the dude is the embodiment—er—of the—ah—triumph of the gentleman over the cad. You take what was once known as a swell, or a fop, or a dandy, and it was not absolutely necessary for him to be a gentleman. The pet, particular god of swelldom was Beau Brummel, don't chew know, and yet he was not a gentleman according to our English acceptation of the term. Still he snubbed the Prince of Wales."

"Would he not have been quite as effective as a dude?"

"By no means," said the youth hastily. "Don't chew see? He was gorgeous and overdressed, while we—er that is, the dude—is the acme of propriety and good taste. He wore loud colors, padded shoulders, corsets, wigs, snuff-box and unlimited jewelry, while the dude wears no jewelry other than a ring, and invariably dresses in dark and quiet colors?"

"Is there any fun in being a dude?"

"To the vulgaw a dude is not impressive. The gorgeous swell took the eye. The women worshipped him for the richness of his dress, and the waitahs in eating houses were overpowered; but the dude is essentially negative. He is not a spectacle; he is a quiet, self-contained gentleman. He is refined, and he is distinguished from the common people by his good manners. In England we have a landed aristocracy: In America the aristocracy are popularly known as dudes, y'know. A fellah dressed properly and walking quietly on the Strand or in Pell Mell is known simply as an English gentleman; but when he appears in the same attire on Fifth avenue he at once be comes a dude."

"May I ask how long you have been away from England?"

"I—aw—cawn't say; the fact is, I have nevah been in England."

"Ah! good day," accenting the "good."

"Good doy," accenting the "doy."

Dressed Beef.

HOW CATTLE ARE BRUISED AND INJURED IN THE TRANSIT FROM THE WEST.

The St. Louis Railway Register says:

"The business of raising cattle on the great plains of the West has grown enormously during the last ten years, yet the supply of beef for the markets of the East has not kept pace with the demand. The price has steadily advanced until this necessary article of food is almost beyond the means of the poorer classes. There have been evils connected with the transportation of cattle from the West to the East which are great and have attracted the attention of humanitarians and consumers. A herd of cattle which arrives at New York from Texas or Montana is received in bad condition. The poor animals taken from their native quiet ranges and crowded into close cars to be rattled and jolted for a week or ten days over railroads, exposed to strange noises, bruised by sudden halts and starts, terrified by their proximity and unusual surroundings, when they reach their journey's end are sick, lame and feverish. In this condition they are slaughtered for food. The idea of killing the cattle near the place of their growth and transporting the dressed meat to market in refrigerator cars was a bright one and has steadily grown in favor. The advantages of the plan are obvious, for it is open to none of the objections urged against the old method. It is understood however, or at least it is claimed, that the firms and companies, who have large capital invested in the live stock business, and the railroads which have provided cars and yards for its accommodation, are oppposed to an innovation and propose to "fight" all attempts to revolutionize the old way.

Commenting on the above the Harrisburg Telegraph says: "There are reasons why beef slaughtered in the West will never be permitted a monopoly of the Eastern markets. It would place us at the mercy of a few gigantic firms or corporations—who would, when their monopoly was confirmed by the extirpation of the Eastern butcher, and the total destruction of the Eastern 'plants' engaged in the business, supply our market with an inferior article, charge what they pleased, and so be secure not only against competition but against our criminal laws, as to be entirely regardless of consequences. It would be the greatest and most dangerous monopoly ever established on this continent. But there are other economical reasons, too numerous to mention here, why the dressed beef business will never be a complete success. The truth is, the dressed beef experiment, now in the hands of a very few men, and supplying only a second class article, is only one expression of the natural protest against the present barbarous, cruel and wasteful methods of live stock transportation, and the consequent high price of beef, mutton and pork. The losses by shrinkage, by death and by bruising amount to many millions of dollars in a year's business, and the torments of the dumb animals are terrible beyond belief by those who have never given the subject attention. Beef brought forward in this way cannot be reliable; it is, in fact, often unfit to feed to a dog. Besides the shameful extortion of the cattle yards, swindles for feed, yardage and handling, a process gone through with several times between Chicago and New York—adds enormously to the value of the article on the butchers' stalls. It is quite probable, as the Railway Register asserts, that the railroads do not intend the proposed dressed beef monopoly to be established—and they have sound reasons for that determination. But they must improve their own methods; they must suppress the cattle yards extortion; they must abate the sufferings of the animals; they must deliver stock fit for slaughter; they must save to the shipper shrinkage, death and bruising; and they must give the public a reasonable guarantee of sound meat. This can be done only by the introduction of a car in which cattle can be fed and watered in transit, and can be car ied at any rate of speed without being thrown down to be trampled to death, or hurled against the side of the car, to contract bruises and ulcers whereby many pounds of the best portions of the beef are rendered unfit for use, and must be cut from the carcass and cast away. Such cars could be run through in one third the time now required; they would so far clear the tracks of the roads for other business; they would destroy the cattle yard .windle; they would save in every direction; they would secure the dumb beast from suffering; and they would give the consumer sound beef. This is the method of the future. It is inevitable. It must come, and the sooner the railroads get ready for it the better it will be for all concerned."

New Postal Regulations.

The Postmaster General has issued an order that after the first of July, whenever a letter prepaid at less than one full rate of postage, or any parcel of third or fourth class matter is not fully prepaid, and being otherwise mailable, is deposited at the postoffice of the first second or third class, and consigned to any other postoffice within the United States, it shall be the duty of the postmaster to send to the address a postal card containieg a notice of the detention, and a request to remit the proper amount of postage to entitle the letter or parcel to be forwarded to its destination. This provision applies only to matter not bearing a card or address of the sender of such card, and as a matter must be returned immediately to the party mailing it. The law requires that matter not fully prepaid shall be sent to the dead letter office, but under this order, where the sender is not known, the address is to be given an opportunity of paying deficient postage. This plan has been tried for a year at the letter carrier offices, and over eighty per cent of the addresses notified responded with the postage.

TO CURE MALARIA.—In the Sanitary Engineer a correspondent recommends garlic and onions as preventives of malaria, which he claims is often the forerunner of diphtheria, small-pox, typhoid fever and other zymotic diseases. The editor in reply remarks facetiously that such a simple universal panacea as is proposed "has long been sought for, and a number of people believe they have found it. The majority of these people at present are cared for in institutions especially provided by the State for that purpose, and are happy in their faith, which we have no desire to disturb. Diphtheria, pneumonia and typhoid flourish where there are no sewers and no malaria. And our friends in Arizona and New mexico, who are familiar with the sight (and smell) of a Mexican, reeking with onions and garlic, and shivering with ague at the same time, will have their doubts as to the theory propounded.

A Successful Year.

The Managers of the American Bible Society have just presented their sixty-seventh Annual Report.

During no previous year of the his of the Society have so many pages of the sacred word been issued; and only a single year—the last of the great civil war—ranks the one just closed in the number of volumes distribbted.

In the United States the Fourth General Supply has been auspiciously inaugurated, and in foreign lands the society has entered new fields, while in countries where the work had been previous established it has been prosecuted with remarkable vigeur and success.

Three hundred and eleven colporteurs have laboured in this country, and two hundred and seventy-six in foreign lands.

The receipts for the year for general purposes were $598, 641 91. Of this amount, $283,998 55 were received for books and on Purchase account; $184, 179 20 from legacies; $60, 367 33 in donations from auxiliary societies, churches, and individuals; $32,294 47 from rentals, and the balance from interest and other sources. Besides which, $23, have been added to the trust fund, the interest of which alone is applicable for general purposes.

The disbursements for manufacturing and for all other general purposes were $599,206 89. For the foreign work of the Society, to be expended during the coming year, the amount of $164,986 85 has been appropriated.

The number of copies of the Scriptures issued during the year is 1,666, 532.

The issues of the Society during sixty-seven years amount to forty two millions, eighty-three thousand, eight hundred and sixteen. (42,083,816.)

Advertising Cheats!!

"It has become so common to write the beginning of an article, in an elegant, interesting manner,

"Then run it into some advertisement that we would avoid all such,

"And simply call attention to the merits of Hop Bitters in as plain, honest terms as possible,

"To induce people

"To give them one trial, which so proves their value that they will never use anything else."

"THE REMEDY so favorably noticed in all the papers,

"Religious and secular, is

"Having a large sale, and is supplanting all other medicines.

"There is no denying the virtues of the Hop plant, and the proprietors of Hop Bitters have shown great shrewdness

"And ability

"In compounding a medicine whose virtues are so palpable to every one's observation.

Did She Die?

"No!

"She lingered and suffered along, pining away all the time for years,"

"The doctors doing her no good;"

"And at last was cured by this Hop Bitters the papers say so much about."

"Indeed! Indeed!"

"How thankful we should be for that medicine."

A Daughter's Misery.

"Eleven years our daughter suffered on a bed of misery,

"From a complication of kidney, liver, rheumatic trouble and Nervous debility,

Under the care of the best physicians,

"Who gave her disease various names,

"But no relief.

"And now she is restored to us in good health by as simple a remedy as Hop Bitters, that we had shunned for years before using it."—THE PARENTS.

Father is Getting Well.

"My daughters say:

"How much better father is since he used Hop Bitters."

"He is getting well after his long suffering from a disease declared incurable"

"And we are so glad that he used your Bitters."—A Lady of Utica, N. Y.

NOTED MEN!

DR. JOHN F. HANCOCK, late President of the National Pharmaceutical Association of the United States, says:

"Brown's Iron Bitters has a heavy sale, is conceded to be a fine tonic; the character of the manufacturers is a voucher for its purity and medicinal excellence."

DR. JOSEPH ROBERTS, President Baltimore Pharmaceutical College, says:

"I indorse it as a fine medicine, reliable as a strengthening, tonic, free from alcoholic poisons."

DR. J. FARIS MOORE, PH. D., Professor of Pharmacy, Baltimore Pharmaceutical College, says:

"Brown's Iron Bitters is a safe and reliable medicine, positively free from alcoholic poisons, and can be recommended as a tonic for use among those who oppose alcohol."

DR. EDWARD EARICKSON, Secretary Baltimore College of Pharmacy, says:

"I indorse it as an excellent medicine, a good digestive agent, and a non-intoxicant in the fullest sense."

DR. RICHARD SAPINGTON, one of Baltimore's oldest and most reliable physicians, says:

"All who have used it praise its standard virtues, and the well-known character of the house which makes it is a sufficient guarantee of its being all that is claimed, for they are men who could not be induced to offer anything else but a reliable medicine for public use."
